been reported in Baker county recently, E. F. Averill, field assistant for Oregon in the U. S. biological department, regards the disease as quiescent, and says stockmen must look out for a recurrence of last year's epidemic. Mr. Averill will spend the remainder of the month in Baker county at the hunting stations at Medical Springs and Keating. No poison will be used against coyotes until winter time, when food for the animals will be scarce.

The salmon pack on Rogue river amounted to 16,000 cases and will furnish business for the small gas boats for some time. A considerable portion of the Macleay pack which amounted to 12,000 cases, has already been sent to Portland, but there are yet several thousand cases to transport. The Seaborg pack of 4000 cases has only about half been delivered at Marshfield and there was a big stack of the product in the Smith Terminal dock warehouse Saturday.

Dr. J. L. Wooden of Clatskanie, has added an up-to-date, portable X-ray coil to his office equipment, which will fill a long felt need in this vicinity that may not at once be manifest to the lay mind, unfamiliar with the important place which such apparatus fills in modern medical science. Not only can all bone fractures and displacements be quickly located, as well as cancerous growths, etc., but it will be especially valuable in the external treatment of many diseases which refuse to respond to ordinary treatment.—Chief.

Corn for silage is being grown by J. J. Neilson, a Union rancher, on a record-setting basis. Claude C. Cate inspected the field and brought a sample stalk of this corn, which measured 11 feet in height and was a fair sample. The rows are closely planted, and the whole field averages 11-foot stalks. So prolific is the field that the average per acre will probably be 20 tons, whereas 10 is a normal figure. The corn was planted for silage only, but the ears are so far advanced now that they would mature without shrinkage if permitted, and the yield at Union proves two things conclusively—that there isn't better silage corn country anywhere, and that the old notion that corn won't mature due to the cold nights, is wrong.

Barton W. Faubion was fatally injured at the Kerry Logging camp at Clatskanie Thursday afternoon, death resulting before he could be gotten home. Shortly before closing time as he was engaged in his usual work at the camp the scout line broke, striking across the head, fracturing his skull at the base, also inflicting other serious injuries. He was placed on the up train with the intention of hastening him to Portland to the hospital, but he died before reaching Clatskanie, consequently the body was taken from the train at this point and placed in the undertaking rooms and his wife immediately notified. Another workman by the name of Hiffensen, whose home is in Portland, was also injured at the same time, but less seriously. He was taken to Portland where he is reported as improving.—Chief.
